It's safari, so good, as Mickey and Minnie outrun a turtle in the jungle.

Mickey and Minnie must tame the lion before they become the mane course.

MICKEY AND MINNIE HAVE NEVER FACED A MYSTERY THIS BIG.

"A date at the circus, I can't wait!" says Minnie to Mickey. But when they get there all the performers have disappeared! "We've got to find the villain who did this!" says Mickey. So off they go, wearing magical costumes that give them powers to make it through six levels of frozen tundras, haunted houses and more. Can they really bring the circus back to town? "Come along and see!" exclaims Mickey.

We've got a world-class case of World Series fever! Last winter, when we ran 10 reasons football is better than baseball, tons of baseball fans wrote us to say, "No way." So now, football fans, it's payback time. Remember, it's just for fun—at D.A., we love all sports!

D.A.'s Top Ten Reasons Why Baseball Is Better Than Football

10. If it rains, baseball players have the good sense to wait till it stops before they play. And if it snows, forget it!
9. In football, you try to stomp and smash your opponent. In baseball, you try to get home.
8. If you go for a hot dog, you won't miss as much action.
7. Grand salamis, cheese, "hey meat," cans of corn and candy hops—every game is a meal!
6. After you score in baseball, you don't dance; you get a curtain call.
5. Baseball has Ozzie Smith and Kirby Puckett. Football doesn't.
4. If the bases are loaded and you're facing Ken Griffey Jr., you can't punt.
3. Baseball players have their own teeth.
2. Two words: baseball caps.
1. No one named Bubba.

DISNEY'S BONKERS HITS HOLLYWOOD TO TOON OUT CRIME.

Citizens Breathe Sigh of Relief

By Scoop Jones
CAPCOM PRESS

HOLLYWOOD, CA

This city, famous for its glamour and fabulous movie stars, is suffering its worst crime wave in years. Informed sources say a very nefarious group of Toons, humans and their henchmen are behind all of the trouble.

Authorities are getting ex-Toon star turned cop Bonkers D. Bobcat and his human partner Lucky Piquel on the case A.S.A.P.! At a packed press conference today Bonkers told reporters, "These crooks won't own the streets for long. Let's just say by the time it's all over they'll be seeing stars. And not the kind in the movies."

Uh oh! Wooly and Booly are waiting to sabotage Bonkers at the end of the conveyor belt.

YOU GO, GIRL!

I just heard on Nick News that boy actors get offered 10 times more movie, TV or commercial jobs than girls do. I find this really unfair.... So many movies are made for or about boys. When the girl has a lead part in a movie, there is always a boy co-star. Don't get me wrong. I have nothing against boy actors or ball players. I would just like to see girls get offered the same opportunities. Isn't that what America is called? The Land of Opportunity?

Jennifer Giorgio, 12
Bronx, New York

Danny gets shuffled in the deck just outside Wonderland, while Larry looks on.

MAD AT MACK—WRITE OR WRONG?

I totally agree with Amy Landers ("Zip Code," June 1994). Macaulay Culkin's answers and terrible handwriting get me steamed. I think it's OK not to want to have tons of people reading about your private life. But what's the big deal about answering questions, like, who is your all-time hero? It isn't an invasion of privacy or anything. I know lots of work is put into D.A. You shouldn't have to waste your time on Mack.

Cassie Durkin, 10
Cresco, Pennsylvania

I am writing regarding the "Mad at Mack" letter by Amy Landers. Macaulay probably has to sign up to 45 autographs a day. Would you then write the best manuscript you ever wrote? I don't think so! He's also just a kid. You sound as if he were a grown-up man. I think you should just lay off the kid. I look at Mack as my role model, not because of his writing but because of how hard he works. That's the main thing.

A Salute to D.A.'s Photojournalists

Meet the winners of The Disney Channel's Great European Adventure Sweepstakes: Melissa Shuffield, 13, from Austin, Texas; Danny Muffett, 9, from Kenosha, Wisconsin; and Ryan Giles, 10, from Sedona, Arizona. We gave these lucky kids cameras and sent them to EuroDisneyland to act as D.A.'s official photojournalists. Here is the pick of their pics:

SIR CHOMPS-A-LOT®

I am pleased to announce that the Grand Prize
Winner of the Chef Boyardee Sir
Chomps-A-Lot/Blossom Sweepstakes has been selected!

Whitney Roundtree,
age 8, from Mesa,
Arizona has won
the following:

- A trip for a family of four to Hollywood for the taping of a Blossom episode.
- $1000 spending money
- And, Whitney was also drawn into a Sir Chomps-A-Lot custom comic starting on the next page!

The Chef Boyardee Sir Chomps-A-Lot/Blossom Sweepstakes, which was announced in the April and May issues of DISNEY ADVENTURES and on the Disney Afternoon, received over 25,000 responses. Lucky Whitney!

Thank Goodness for Chef Boyardee!®

I think the TV show “Beavis and Butt-head” can warp anybody's brain.
Samantha Rash, 12
Grand Junction, Colorado

I think that is a stupid theory. 'Cause that's what it is, a theory. No one's proved it. I'm a 10-year-old boy with two sisters, 16 and 14. We all love and constantly listen to grunge/alternative and rap. I have a 4.0 G.P.A. and my sisters have 3.0s.
Morgan E.B. Johnson, 10
Shelbyville, Kentucky

Talk about an earful! In our May 1994 issue, we told you that researchers say listening to grunge and rap music puts your

Things that make you go “duh” are:
1) Adventurous movies (example, Jurassic Park);

Katie Bigam, 9

I think the researchers are right: Rap music can drain your brain. The music is too fast, and your brain can't keep up, or too slow and way too stupid.

Springfield II— Aye, Carumba!

Chalk one up for the local school kids in Greenwood, South Carolina. When the school board let the kids vote for the name of their newly built school, they chose Springfield Elementary. The parents 'bout had a cow! They protested because that's the name of Bart Simpson's school on "The Simpsons" and they feel Bart isn't a good role model for kids. The moms and dads asked the school board to select a new name. To the kids' delight, the school board refused. Bet Bart's one happy dude!

You've
read the books,
now meet

the man! The king of fright, R.L. Stine, gives Jr.
Reporter Hailey Stroup
advice on scare tactics.

D.A.: When did you decide to write scary
books?

Stine: About six years ago, an editor suggested I try writing a scary book,
so I wrote Blind Date.

D.A.: Where do you get ideas for stories?

Stine: Everywhere. For example, if I were on vacation and I got bitten by a spider, I might get an idea for a book about gigantic spiders attacking people. My fans give me ideas, too.

D.A.: Are your characters
based on real people?

Stine: No, but I try to make the characters believable. I use names from my son Matt's school directory. I want the readers to feel the characters' fear.

D.A.: What advice would you give someone who wants to write books?

HORRORS!
R.L. STINE
GIVES
FRIGHT

Stine: Read as much as you can to experience
different writing styles.
And never give up.

D.A.: What book
scares you?

Stine: Something Wicked This Way Comes
was very scary!

D.A.: Why are your books so popular?

Stine: I think people like to be scared and surprised. They like the endings of the chapters, because they keep readers on their toes.

D.A.: Do you write
every day?

Stine: I write from about 9:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m., six days a week. I write about 20 pages a day.

D.A.: How many autographs have you given?

Stine: Thousands and thousands! I get at least 500 letters a week, and I answer them all.

D.A. REPORTS ON THE SCENE
& ON THE SCREEN

KIDS ON

How much TV can a kid stand? We grabbed five kids and made them watch hours of new fall TV shows. By the third show, the D.A. yawn-o-meter was maxed out. But they hung in there. Here are our kid critics' comments.

 Kyle Fukumoto, 10; Manuel Ramirez, 11; Jill Fukumoto, 13; Lindsay Lilburn, 11; and Bret Fukumoto, 8

"DADDY'S GIRLS"

Plot: A recently divorced fashion designer copes with business problems and three very different daughters.

The Good: Manuel laughed at Phoebe, the airhead daughter, and her equally airheaded boyfriend, Scar.

Kid Critic Rating:

Loved it, dah-ling! The fashion biz has never been so funny!

"THE BOYS ARE BACK"

Plot: Three grown sons return to their childhood home, much to mom and dad's dismay.

The Bad: The grandkids were funny, but they weren't on screen enough. (Our critics especially wanted more of grandson Nicky.)

Kid Critic

Rating: It had its

TV

moments, but your mom and dad are more likely to relate.

“HARDBALL”

Plot: The boss of this underdog baseball team will do anything to pull them out of baseball’s cellar.

The Good: Manuel liked the over-the-hill pitcher’s attempts to impress a pretty girl in the stands. Kyle thought the ballplayer named Frank Valente was hilarious.

👍 Kid Critic Rating: If you like baseball, you’ll like this show.

“ME AND THE BOYS”

Plot: A single dad raises his three rambunctious sons using humor and trickery. The problem? His mother-in-law, who’s always out to prove him wrong.

The Bad: Bret and Lindsay didn’t like the annoying mother-in-law.

👍 Kid Critic Rating: Funny, yet predictable.

“ON OUR OWN”

Plot: Seven orphans scheme to keep their family from being separated by a well-meaning social worker.

The Good: A neighbor you’ll love to loath—prissy Hannah reminded Jill of Steve Urkel. And the big bro’s antics had everyone cracking up.

👍 Kid Critic Rating: Yeah, the story’s good, but watch this show for the characters’ rad hair. Oh, and the dog is cool, too!

“PARTY OF FIVE”

Plot: Five orphans try to manage their money, each other and their social lives without the help of a well-meaning social worker.

The Bad: Kyle’s take: “It’s not funny.”

The Good: Lindsay liked the violin-playing sister.

👍 Kid Critic Rating: This drama was too serious for us!

with

SIMON®

THE FUN IS IN THE CHALLENGE.
SIMON.

Look, listen, remember and repeat Simon's CHALLENGING sights and sounds to beat him at his own game. It takes a sound mind and quick reflexes to beat the king of slap-rap, so you'd better warm-up a bit first. Here's something to get you loose...

he game starts when someone makes up a two line rhyme about Simon®. The next player has to REPEAT the first rhyme and add two more lines. And so on, and so on - until someone messes up. Simple, right? Hold on.

PLAYERS can add claps, taps, slaps and just about anything else a body can do to make their RHYMES tougher for the others to repeat. To get you started, here's a few lines we made up:

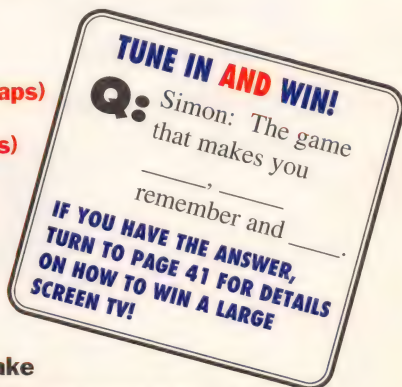

ook, Listen, Remember, Repeat, (3 claps)

Rappin', Rhymin', Stomping Feet (3 stomps)

SIMON says you'll never last

When he gets going really fast

Simon's had his say. Now you can have yours. When you get good at this game, take on the champ. Get Simon. Are you up to the challenge? Simon.

TWIN STARS RISING

D.A. hung with Tia and Tamera Mowry at their house in Southern California and chatted about
twindom, "Sister, Sister" and the
flip side of sitcom heaven.

D.A.: Do you always say things at the same time?

TIA & TAMERA: Yes!

D.A.: Do you ever get bored while making your TV show?

TAMERA: Yeah, during blocking. That's when you aren't filming yet but the cameramen have to follow you. But some of the cameramen doze off, so they're like, "Huh? Wait. Let's do that again!"

TIA: They'll say, "Stop. Hold." And you're standing there for like...

TIA & TAMERA: ...15 minutes.

TAMERA: That's the worst.

D.A.: Is it hard not to laugh sometimes?

TIA: Once Tim Reid [who plays Ray] had water on his head...

TAMERA: He was supposed to be eating chili, and it was supposed to be really...

TIA & TAMERA:...HOT!

TAMERA: And he was supposed to be sweating. There was a little tube of water coming down right to his forehead, and he had to squeeze this thing to make it look like he was sweating...

TIA: ...and water just started coming out! All three of us kids—Marques Houston [who plays Roger], Tamera and I—were laughing so hard...

TAMERA: ...they had to cut.

TIA: And they said, "OK. We're going to do it again!"

TAMERA: The audience was making it worse, because they were laughing. You could still see our little smirks in that episode.

D.A.: Does the director have to remind you about certain things?

TIA: I always have my back to the camera. They're always telling me, "Open out, Tia."

TAMERA: Or the director will want me to look at Tia and say my line, but then he'll say, "Tamera, cheat a little bit." That means I can't really look at Tia, because my face will be turned too much. So I just turn it a little and pretend that I'm looking at her.

TIA: Also I have a tendency to lean forward a little bit and...

TAMERA: ...she blocks my camera!

D.A.: On the show you guys have that pesky little neighbor, Roger. Is there someone like that in real life?

TIA: Yes, him—Marques! Whatever he's playing...

TIA & TAMERA: ...that's him in real life!

TIA: He's kind of short, and we always pick on his height. So he's always saying, "I'm gonna get you!"

D.A.: You're going to be driving soon. Do you want matching cars?

TAMERA: We want to share a car, because we're going to the same college. Tamera and I want to be lawyers when we grow up.

D.A.: Does that mean you don't want to keep acting?

TIA & TAMERA: Oh yes, we do!

VANISHING COIN

Here's a way to make money... disappear. "That's easy," you say.

"I do that every day." But can you make it reappear? Now you're interested...

❶ Place a dime on a table or counter top. ❷ Then, take an ordinary tall drinking glass (preferably one without too thick a bottom), fill it to the very top with water and set the glass of water on top of the dime. ❸ Cover the top of the glass with a saucer or small plate as shown. Try looking down through the side of the glass at the dime. The dime has disappeared!

Remove the plate and the dime reappears.

THE MAKING OF A SITCOM

Within weeks of being discovered on the "Full House" set, 16-year-olds Tia and Tamera Mowry were starring in their own sitcom: "Sister, Sister." It's the story of sisters separated at birth who find each other again. D.A. was there when the twins were starting out.

THE GREEN LIGHT

The producers film a "presentation"—a shorter version of an episode—to show to the network. The "Sister, Sister" presentation impressed ABC so much, the network gave it the thumbs up: "Sister, Sister" was officially a sitcom!

MONTHS BEFORE FILMING

The sitcom's team of seven writers meets with the producers to brainstorm story ideas for all the episodes for the season. The twins helped out by telling their twin life story, which inspired episodes on a slumber party and cheating on an exam.

WEEKS BEFORE FILMING

The writers are given the story outline, and each writes a first draft. All the scripts are discussed, and a head writer is put in charge of combining the different

THE WEEK OF FILMING! MONDAY

The production meeting. The actors, producers and the heads of all the departments, such as costume and special effects, meet to decide who is responsible for what, scene by scene.

For example, a scene in which the twins are watching TV and snacking might bring up these questions: What are they watching? Are they in pajamas? Is their hair up or down? What are they eating? Are the characters (or the actors) allergic to any type of food?

DAYS BEFORE FILMING

The script "goes to table." All the writers take turns making suggestions on each script. From this meeting, they put together the "table draft," the script that will be read by the cast at the table reading during...

"It's important to think about everything," says the show's director, Zane Buzby. "When we did the kitchen set, we had to rehang the refrigerator doors so that when someone peeks inside, you can still see them on camera!"

The table reading. The cast, producers, writers, and people from the studio and the network go to “the table reading,” when the cast reads their lines for the first time. Everyone makes notes on the story and offers their suggestions. It’s an important meeting for the writers. They make notes on which jokes didn’t get a laugh, so they can change them in the next draft.

After lunch, everyone meets again to iron out what changes they think should be made in the including Monday’s changes. (The script is pink so that no one confuses it with the original.)

By this time, most of the writers are working on the following week’s script, and the casting for next episode is underway.

First run-through. On the set, the cast performs the scenes for the writers, producers and wardrobe folks, who make even more changes. The writers stay late to story. For example, in one episode of “Sister, Sister,” the studio people suggested that the twins apologize to each other at the end of an argument scene. Then the writers revised the script again.

While this meeting takes place, the director begins rehearsing with the actors. This is called “getting the script on its feet.”

TUESDAY

Rehearsals. A new script printed on pink paper is put together, write another draft of the script.

WEDNESDAY

Second run-through. The cast performs the scenes again for the studio and network with the new script and all the props, including costumes. Result: more changes.

Shot assignments. As the latest draft is written, the director works out which cameras should be filming each actor during every minute of taping. The director of “Sister, Sister” has to plan about 250 to 300 shots for each episode. The writers and director sometimes work until 11 p.m.!

THURSDAY

Dry blocking. The whole cast, crew and technicians arrive by 9:30 a.m. The actors perform each scene while the technical crew “eyeballs,” or watches, it to determine the movement of the “boom,” or microphone. During rehearsals, more changes are made.

Thursday night, so they rehearse those changes first.

First taping. The show is filmed first without an audience, because the audience may get bored during long set changes or—nightmare!—they might have an audience that doesn’t laugh at the jokes!

Meal break. The crew relaxes while the cast, writers and producers eat and discuss any last-minute changes in the way a line is

Run-through on camera. A quick taping of each scene shows the director what costume and prop changes to make.

While this is happening, a production assistant times the script. The show must be 22 minutes long without commercials.

FRIDAY

The crew arrives on the set at noon, while the cast goes straight for hair and makeup. A new scene may have been added as late as read or the way a prop is used.

Final Taping. The twins get pumped when performing in front of a live studio audience. The taping lasts about an hour and a half.

EDITING

The director edits the show and sends a tape to the studio and the network, where final notes are made on the way the episode is cut. Editing takes about a month...and then the show is “aired” on TV!

THE WIZARD OF WACKY

Looking for some of the coolest TV and movie cars ever? Take a ride with George Barris.

THE BATMOBILE FROM THE TV SHOW

The TV Batmobile was made out of a Lincoln Futura, an experimental car that was never sold. All the buttons and levers in the car—for smoke bombs, rockets, flames, nails and oil skids—actually worked.

When George Barris was a teenager, everybody thought he was nuts. He painted his first car, his mom's old 1925 Buick, in diagonal blue and orange stripes, then proudly drove it around town. But soon the other kids started saying, "Hmm, that looks kinda cool," and they asked George to customize their cars.

Today, everyone in Hollywood knows that if you want an awesome car, George is your guy. He's created special cars for hundreds of TV shows and movies. Check out some of his coolest creations.

JURASSIC PARK'S TOUR CARS

These Ford Explorers were supposed to look like electric cars on a track, so George moved the pedals and steering wheel behind the back seat, where a hidden stuntman drove. A monitor let him see where he was going.

THE BEVERLY HILLBILLIES' JALOPY

This 1921 Oldsmobile touring sedan already was pretty beaten-up when George spotted it at a feed store. He turned it into a pickup by cutting off the back half and building a wooden bed platform.

WHEELS

THE BATMOBILE FROM THE MOVIES

The movie Batmobile was sculpted out of steel to look like a jet-powered car, but its base is a Chevrolet Chevelle. Unlike the TV Batmobile, this one can't shoot rockets or drive on its side—that's all done using special effects.

THE FLINTSTONES' CAR

George custom-built the Fred-powered car out of foam and fiberglass, using a golf cart as the base.

WAYNE'S WORLD'S MIRTHMOBILE

George turned this Pacer coupe, a "fat little car from the '70s," into a radical roadster. He cut off the top, painted flames around the front and added knobby T.A. (terrain and asphalt) tires.

GHOSTBUSTERS' ECTO-500

George had to go all the way to Nebraska to find the car he wanted for the Ecto-500—a '49 Cadillac ambulance.

Morpho

saurus!

Everyone knows the Power Rangers can morph into mighty prehistoric creatures. But what if you were a Super Power Ranger who could choose the scariest parts from lots of dinosaurs and morph them together? You'd sure be one dangerous dino:

1 HEAD: Torosaurus

Better not call the torosaurus a wimpy plant-eater. The skull of this enormous horned dinosaur was five feet long—the largest skull of any land animal. It used the horns on its skull to ward off meat-eaters and other torosaurus.

2 TEETH AND JAWS: Tyrannosaurus Rex, Allosaurus

No list would be complete without the infamous carnivores T-Rex and allosaurus—two guys you wouldn't want to run into anytime. Eight-ton T-Rex ripped through bones and flesh with its jagged, seven-inch-long teeth.

The 36-foot-long allosaurus, known for killing dinosaurs twice its size, had an equally ferocious reputation. Allosaurus—the “tiger of the Jurassic Age”— had jaws so big it could swallow huge chunks of flesh without even chewing. It attacked its prey by pouncing and then slashing 20 to 40 times with its sharp curved claws.

3 TAIL: Stegosaurus and Ankylosaurus

Even the T-Rex had to watch out when it came upon the powerful stegosaurus from behind.

Though its brain was no bigger than a walnut (you wouldn't want to morph that part), the stego had a vicious, thick tail with spikes nearly a yard long—which it wasn't afraid to swing when it got mad!

The tail becomes even scarier with the addition of the club-shaped bone from the end of the ankylosaurus' tail. Although the ankylosaurus was only about the size of an Army tank, it could defend itself like a Ninja master by swinging its tail-club.

4 CLAWS: Deinonychus

Its name means "terrible claw." The fierce predator deinonychus was one of the scariest carnivores of the early Cretaceous Period. Scientists think the dino stood on one leg, slashed its dinner with the razor-sharp claws on its other foot, and then ripped into it with its dagger-like teeth. Friendly guy.

5 SIZE: Seismosaurus

For the past nine years, paleontologists have been digging up bones near Albuquerque, New Mexico, that belong to what they say is the longest dinosaur ever found. Named seismosaurus because the creature probably created a small earthquake with every step, the Jurassic-Period dinosaur measured 140 feet long from head to tail.

THE KICKER — ATTITUDE: Coelophysis

And you think you have it bad at home? Just thank heaven you weren't a young coelophysis. When they found small coelophysis skeletons in the stomach cavities of adult ones, scientists began to suspect that parent coelophyses ate their young.

Justin and Jeremy

Lindblad have had water fights with elephants, shared lunch with giraffes and chased poisonous snakes off their baseball field. They're real-life young adventurers (Justin's 13; Jeremy's 10) who have visited Africa lots of times to explore the wild terrain of Serengeti National Park. EACH TRIP starts with a 17-hour flight from their home in New York City to Eastern Africa. But the guys don't just jump on a plane and go. Before they leave, they become human pincushions, getting tons of shots to protect them from exotic diseases like malaria and yellow fever—sicknesses you don't have to worry about in America. Getting shots just rots, but Justin and Jeremy say it's worth it because an African safari is nonstop excitement.

A photograph of two young boys sitting on a dark, textured rock. The boy on the left is wearing a pink and blue striped polo shirt and grey shorts, smiling broadly. The boy on the right is wearing a teal polo shirt and grey shorts, also smiling. They are both wearing white sneakers. The background is a soft-focus view of a body of water and a hilly shoreline under a warm, golden light. A yellow text box is in the upper right corner, and a decorative black and white geometric pattern is below it.

Justin: We arrive in Nairobi [Kenya] and spend a couple of days just chilling out at a hotel to get over the jet lag. Then we head for the bush as quickly as possible. You take off in a Range Rover, and before you know it, you're in the middle of nowhere, surrounded by all kinds of animals. You don't see snakes and monkeys walking around New York City!

there

JUSTIN: You always know if a lion is nearby. If you don't hear a roar, you can spot the tracks. If you stumble on a lion, you keep your distance and don't do anything to make him mad. When a lion's mad, you know it. If you're close when one roars, you can feel the ground shake.

JUSTIN: Once we played baseball in a field full of puff adders. We knew snakes like to hide in grassy areas, but we decided that taking risks is just part of being in Africa. We never got bitten, but if we had, we'd have just pulled out the snake-bite kit.

Puff adders are large, extremely poisonous vipers found in many parts of Africa. They're responsible for more human and livestock deaths than any other African snake species, including cobras and mambas.

JEREMY: Snakes are scary, but I was more afraid when I first met the Maasi [a tribe of people native to the Serengeti]. The first time I saw the Maasi [Muss-EYE], they were having a huge party. They started chanting and throwing their spears. I ran back to the jeep, jumped in and locked all the doors and windows. But after a while I got to know the Maasi, and they're very nice people. Of course, they don't speak English, so I had to communicate through hand signals.

JUSTIN: We first met the Maasi when I was real little. They were fascinated by my gym shoes. They rarely wear anything on their feet, and they wondered what those things were on mine. So I pulled one off and let them check it out.

Jeremy: One time I ran into a Maasi boy who touched my hat. At first, I thought he was just curious, like they were with Justin's shoes. But then I learned it was part of a ritual where a younger boy is supposed to bow to an older one. So then I bowed to the older Maasi, and he reached out and touched my head. I guess it was a way of showing respect.

set up camp

Justin:

While traveling around the Serengeti, we live out of camps. In a typical camp you eat and sleep on cots. The natives set up everything for us. There are lots of mosquito nets, because at night bugs are everywhere. (The tsetse flies and mosquitos will eat you alive!) We eat lots of native fruit—bananas and mangos—also steak, cottage pie (that's ground beef covered with mashed potatoes) and po-sho (ground rice and corn). No weird stuff; it's always really good.

Tsetse flies

are equipped with specialized, bloodsucking mouth parts that transmit tiny parasites (called trypanosomes). The parasites cause sleeping sickness (which causes a coma or death) in humans. Found mostly in tropical Africa, the presence of tsetse flies has made many tracts of land uninhabitable.

Jeremy: Once when we went exploring on foot, my mom, Justin and I got lost at the base of this large gorge. It was kind of scary: It started getting dark and it looked like it might rain, which would have flooded the gorge. We yelled and screamed until the others found us. It was lucky, because the Serengeti is very dangerous at night. That's when many of the large animals hunt, and we wouldn't have stood much of a chance.

the wild

JEREMY: There's a place called Giraffe Manor in Nairobi. The owners have all these pet giraffes. We would go inside the house, and the giraffes would come up and stick their heads right in the windows looking for food. They'd eat right out of our hands. Giraffes are very friendly.

JUSTIN: We sometimes head out into the brush looking for monkeys. The chimpanzees are dangerous. They don't like to be bothered. If you get too close they start screaming and waving their arms. The best thing to do is just to keep your distance and observe them. We've heard stories of chimps actually attacking humans, so we try to avoid them.

JUSTIN: One day in Nairobi this baby elephant was taking a bath in a mud puddle. I decided to help out, and before long the elephant started spraying me with mud and water. So I grabbed a bucket, and we started a water fight.

JEREMY: One time we were exploring a dry lake bed and I heard rustling in the brush. Suddenly four huge elephants stepped out and surrounded us. They have horrible eyesight, and if a movement scares them, they stampede, so we stayed very still. They started trumpeting, and we froze in our tracks for about 15 minutes until they moved on.

amazing Africa

Justin:

The sunsets in Africa are amazing—I almost can't believe they're real. At the end of the day, it cools off and clouds roll in. Then the sunlight reflects off the sandy, dry ground, turning the sky bright orange and red. Every night we'd just sit and watch the sun go down.

To me, living in New York with all the crime is more dangerous than being on the Serengeti. Sure, there are lions and snakes there, but if you respect Africa and its animals, you're going to survive.

Hey! We're hanging in the

A-Zone today, trying to decide which of us knows the weirdest fact. "Louis XIV owned 413 beds," says Chip.

"He must have taken lots of cat naps," laughs Lizzie.

"Did you know," Blubb pipes up, "that playing cards in India are round?"

"Yes!" we all answer.

MC<sup>2</sup> is squirming. "I've got one! I've got one!" she squeals. "An egg will float in water that's had sugar added to it!" Blubb doesn't believe her, so he goes into the kitchen to check it out.

"My turn," says Lizzie. "Honey is the only food that doesn't ever spoil!"

"True. Very true. But listen to this..." I whisper. "This is going to top them all." I've got them in the palm of my hand. Even Blubb comes out of the kitchen to hear this one.

"Most tropical marine fish..." they all lean forward to hear better, "could survive in a tank filled with human blood!"

"Aaaaaaaaaaaaaahhhhhhhh!!!! Yecch!" They're all running in circles and bumping into each other as they scramble toward the door.

I guess I won.

What makes your ears ring?

Sandra Misek, 10
Denver, Colorado

If you hear ringing and there's no one around with a bell, you're suffering from tinnitus. That means your brain is receiving sound signals when there's actually no sound. Your auditory nerve carries sound, so if the nerve's irritated, the brain mistakes the impulse for a sound.

Tinnitus usually is temporary and can be caused by things like a very loud noise or an allergic reaction to medicine. More serious cases can be caused by blabbing too much on the phone or having a swollen ear.

What is static electricity, and how does it work?

Erin Coats, 11

Omaha, Nebraska

You know how when you're combing your hair, sometimes it crackles and stands on end? That's because of static electricity, and this is how it works: Everything is made up of atoms, right? Well, atoms are made up of electrons, protons and neutrons. Electrons have a negative electric charge, protons have a positive charge, and neutrons—you guessed it—are neutral and have no charge.

Usually an atom has the same number of protons as it does electrons. But if it gains electrons (the negative ones), causing it to have more negative than positive parts, the atom becomes negatively charged. If it loses electrons, it becomes positively charged. Particles with unlike charges attract each other, and particles with the same charges repel (move away from) each other.

When you comb your hair, friction causes the comb to gain electrons, becoming negatively charged. Your hair loses electrons, getting a positive charge. So the hair and the comb pull toward each other, making your hair stand up to get near the comb.

Well, that's all for now. Till next time, play hard and think deep.

Bill Nye will do just about anything to prove that science is cool. He invents raps about the human blood stream. He jumps out of a plane to show where wind comes from. Now, he's the host of "Disney Presents Bill Nye the Science Guy" on PBS. Naturally, D.A. wanted to know more about his cool scientific methods, and since we're too chicken to skydive, we dropped in at Nye Headquarters to find out why ...

"SCIENCE RULES!"

Q: How did you get interested in science?

A: I always thought science was cool. Pumping up water rockets and riding my bike off ramps is cool, and that's science. I think everyone's interested in science, but sometimes kids are afraid of it.

Q: So that's why you jump out of planes?

A: Yeah, the whole show is designed to get people excited about science. If you learn something, that's great. But the main thing is to get excited! That's my goal, because all the problems in the world—like the hole in the ozone layer, pollution and disease—are science problems. And to solve science problems, we need to have scientists.

Q: What's the most exciting thing about science?

A: The fact that the earth goes around the sun. It's unbelievable that we're on this little spaceship hurtling around a star! Gravity—the same force that holds water down in lakes and glasses—is what keeps us in orbit around the sun.

Q: What's your favorite science experiment?

A: It depends on my mood. Right now, I'm really into blowing smoke rings. I have a big cardboard box that I fill with smoke from a theater fogger. Then huge smoke rings come out of holes in the box and travel 30 or 40 feet. It looks like magic, but it's not magic...it's science!

Q: Do you have any advice for future scientists?

A: You can't know everything, so don't get discouraged. In fact, the more you learn, the more you realize you don't know anything. But that's okay because science is about exploring the world. Just go where it takes you.

—Kim Lockhart

There's more science where that came from! With Bill Nye's Amazing Box O' Science, you can blow up a balloon by creating carbon dioxide, make your own magnifying glass and build a compass out of an ordinary magnet. The best part? The kits are free to the first 2,000 kids who write to:

Major-League Mad

We are so excited! It's World Series time, so we're dedicating the whole sports section to baseball's big championship. Fans have been cheering the Series since 1903. That's when the feuding National League and American League decided to hold a game to find out which league had the best team. The Boston Pilgrims beat the Pittsburgh Pirates in that best-of-nine first Series. And since 1905, major league baseball has always had a Fall Classic.

ness

World Series' Greatest Hits

OK, we haven't seen every Series, but here are D.A.'s picks for three of the World Series' best.

1960 Pittsburgh 4, New York

Yankees 3: The Yankees had won 7 of the previous 10 Series titles. In the 1960 Series, they outscored the Pirates 55-27. But in the bottom of the ninth of Game 7, with the score tied 9-9, Pittsburgh's Bill Mazeroski slammed a home run that won the championship for the Pirates.

1975 Cincinnati 4, Boston 3:

The best game of this exciting series was a spectacular 12-inning battle in Game 6, clinched by Boston on Carlton Fisk's famous homer to left. But Cincy finally won in Game 7, bouncing back from 3 runs down.

1991 Minnesota 4, Atlanta 3:

Five of the 7 games in this series were decided by one run. With the Twins down 3 games to 2,

Kirby Puckett's homer in the 11th won Game 6 for Minnesota. Then, with Game 7 tied 0-0, Gene Larkin hit a one-out, bases-loaded RBI single in the bottom of the 10th to hand the Twins the championship.

—James Buckley Jr.

Series Super

Everyone who has ever played baseball has a dream—hitting a home run in the last inning to win the World Series.

Toronto's Joe Carter did just that last October. His three-run homer in the bottom of the ninth in Game 6 gave the Blue Jays the first back-to-back World Series wins in 15 years. Carter danced around the bases, then at home plate found himself under a pileup of happy teammates.

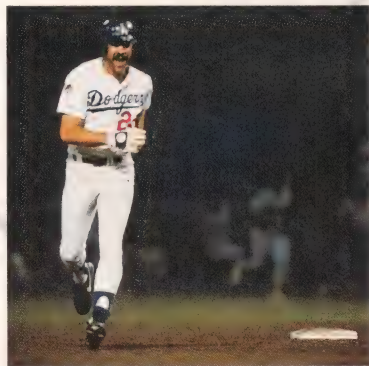

Here are some other recent World Series heroes:

Billy Hatcher, Cincinnati, 1990: Hatcher came to the plate only 12 times in this four-game sweep, but he got nine hits! His .750 average was the best-ever in a short series.

Kirk Gibson and Orel Hershiser, Los Angeles, 1988: In his only at-bat of the Series, a limping, injured

Gibson came off the bench to pinch-hit and slugged a homer to win Game 1. After Gibson's heroics, Hershiser took it from there, pitching complete-game wins in Games 2 and 5, recording an ERA of only 1.00.

Willie Stargell, Pittsburgh, 1979: "Pops" Stargell was 39 when he led a bunch of kids,

heroes

the "We Are Family" team, to the Series crown. The "old man" batted .400 with three homers and seven RBIs.

Reggie Jackson, New York Yankees, 1977: In Game 6, "Mr. October" put on one of the greatest hitting displays ever to win for New York. After a first-inning walk, Jackson faced three more pitches. The result: three swings, three out-of-the-park homers, five RBIs, and another chapter in the Reggie legend.

The Jungle Book

Available for all your favorite game systems.

they've got claws
they've got venom
they've got teeth
you've got bananas?

But don't worry. They're not the kind of bananas you cut up in cereal. They're the kind that can cut down a man-eating tiger, spit-ball hurling snake, ballistic bat, crazy ape, or totally mental, maniac monkey. In the new video game, Disney's The Jungle Book, a banana can save your butt...and really mess up someone else's. You'll fire off your favorite fruit through 11 different play levels*. Plus 5 wild bonus rounds. With characters and songs straight from the Disney movie. Disney's The Jungle Book even features movie-like super-smooth animation. From Virgin and Disney, the same companies that created Aladdin for the Sega™ Genesis™ System. So make like a banana...and split for your nearest video store.

The Great Circus Mystery Starring Mickey and Minnie

PLAYERS: One or two

SYSTEM: Super NES

STAGES: 7

MISSION: Mickey and Minnie become quick-change artists to find out who has mysteriously taken over the circus.

DIFFICULTY: No Brainer

The circus comes to town! M & M plan to have a fun day under the Big Top, but the circus troupe has done a disappearing act!

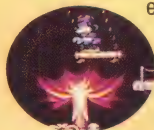

M & M's vacuum site has supersuction capabilities. Check out Mickey's western gear, which includes a cork gun.

As Mickey and Minnie travel through different worlds, have them change costumes, 'cause each one gives them different powers.

▶ Mickey does the cannonball! Collect coins, then Mickey and Minnie can buy hearts and other valuable power-ups.

Porky Pig's Haunted Holiday

PLAYERS: One

SYSTEM: Super NES

STAGES: 6

MISSION: Porky Pig wakes up to find himself lost in a haunted theme park, and he must find his way out.

DIFFICULTY: Brainer

Looney Tunes fans will love this game. Porky's cartoon friends make surprise appearances.

▶ Hidden doors that randomly appear during the game help Porky reach secret areas that might contain power-ups or other bonus items.

This game's got a new feature called Chaos Mapping, so the game's animation and special effects constantly change. No two adventures will ever be the same!

Porky's spending Halloween in a haunted theme park along with lots of monsters and ghosts.

TIP OF THE MONTH

To make Tetris (Game Boy) even harder, press Start to pause the game, then press Select. Now, press Start again to resume the action. The preview box that normally tells you what shape will be falling next will be empty. Nicole Boschi, 9, Amsterdam, New York

Even if you're not a techno-dweeb, you'll want to check out these cool computer games.

Imagine being the mayor of your very own town. With SimTown, that's exactly what you are...the boss. You begin by designing and building a town complete with horses, streets, movie theaters, pizza parlors and factories. Then, you must manage the town's day-to-day operations. Your job includes making sure the garbage gets picked up, insuring that kids have a place to skateboard, and providing enough streets so that there are no traffic jams. If you're jittery about being the boss, practice managing several predesigned towns before creating your own.

The battle between the Rebel Alliance and the Imperial Navy is about to take place on your computer screen. In this game, based on the Star Wars movie trilogy, you'll get recruited by Darth Vader and then hop into the pilot's seat of a powerful and fast TIE fighter. You'll experience several challenging missions, visit alien worlds and take part in deep-space battles. The graphics are created using 3-D polygons that zoom, scale and rotate quickly on the screen. Actual sound effects and an original score based on music from the Star Wars films are included.

500 South Buena Vista Street
Burbank, CA 91521-6018

Hey batta, batta, batter! There was some major swingin' going on at the plate this summer. Ken Griffey Jr. even broke Babe Ruth's record for most homers in the first three months of a season. And now, just in time for the World Series, these cool card sets feature baseball's hottest hitters!

BIG SHOTS

Upper Deck has taken baseball's biggest players and made them bigger than ever! Upper Deck's All-Star cards are 3.5 x 5.25 inches (traditional cards are 2.5 x 3.5 inches). The set includes action and posed shots of stars like Roberto Alomar, Barry Bonds and Juan Gonzalez, plus a 6-card subset honoring great moments in baseball. The 48-card set comes with an order form for a special album to hold these big-time collectibles.

SUPER SLUGGERS

Baseball's top-25 power hitters now have more in common than their ability to light up the scoreboard—they're all members of Pinnacle's Power Surge set. The cards feature gold-foil stamping and in-action slugging on the front, with player stats, career highlights and two-color photos on the back. Pinnacle will produce only 100,000 sets, and each set has a numbered certificate of authenticity.
